

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for the treatment of phosphorus containing waste waters, particularly pig manure, which comprises separating the waste water into a solids faction and a liquid faction, mixing the liquid faction with a mineral substance to reduce the phosphor content, and separating the liquid faction from the mineral substance. A preferred mineral substance is quarry fines.